

ENG 111, College Composition I Elite Learning—Fall 2021 (Yearlong I)

Supporting Colleges: VHCC MECC SWCC WCC

Southwest Virginia Education and Training Network

Instructor: David S. Burns

Office/Office Hours: M-F 3:20-3:45 p.m. by phone, or anytime by email.

Telephone: Northwood High School Phone: 276-496-7751

Email/Messaging: the easiest way to contact me is via a message through Canvas. On average, I will check my account four times per school day, meaning that if you message me, you will usually get a response within five to six hours. Alternatively, you may email me at dsb47@email.vccs.edu.

Class Meeting Times: this course is asynchronous, which means that you may log in at any time, day or night. At a minimum, you are expected to log in once per school day.

Catalog Description: College Composition I (3 credits): Introduces students to critical thinking and the fundamentals of academic writing. Through the writing process, students refine topics: develop and support ideas; investigate, evaluate, and incorporate appropriate resources; edit for effective style and usage; and determine appropriate approaches for a variety of contexts, audiences, and purposes. Writing activities will include exposition and argumentation with at least one researched essay.

Prerequisite: Students must achieve satisfactory scores on placement tests or SAT's, based on standards established by the Virginia Community College System, or have satisfactorily completed ENG 01 and/or ENG 04 before entering ENG 111.

Students that successfully complete this course will earn 3 hours of college credit.

Textbooks/Supplies: None. All course materials are provided in Canvas by the instructor.

Teaching Methods/Instructional Delivery: Instruction will be delivered in two ways: first, the class as a whole will receive indirect instruction via videos, unit notes, and regular class updates in the course news feed. Second, students will receive direct, one-on-one instruction in the form of written notes and responses to writing assignments, including essays and forum posts. These responses will be delivered within approximately seven school days after the close of each unit.

With some of your assignments, you will also be asked to share your draft material with other students in the class, and use feedback from others to aid you in the revision and review of your work. Your responses will be evaluated for quality and quantity: you are expected to post meaningful and insightful critical responses based on specified criteria in each response assignment.

Technology Requirement: Students will be required to complete and submit assignments by using Canvas, the learning management system for Elite Learning. Students will need use of the Internet for all coursework.

The Virginia Community College System offers Microsoft Word for free to currently enrolled students. Students are eligible to install Office 365 on up to 5 devices at no cost. The Office 365 product includes Microsoft Word, Excel, PowerPoint, and Outlook. Students can download Microsoft Office 365 by going to: <http://office.vccs.edu>. Students will use their full My VCCS email address as their username, and their My VCCS password to log into the site.

Technical Support: Technical problems are not common but occur from time-to-time. Trouble tickets, for the most part, will be sent directly to the technical support team at the community college. Students should refer to the How to Receive Technical Support document to receive prompt support. This document is found in the Elite Learning Guide for Students on Page 28. You should receive a response within 24 hours (usually much sooner). After you have submitted the trouble ticket, please send me an email or message to let me know what problems you are having.

Course Learning Outcomes/Objectives: The main purpose of this composition course (English 111 / Dual Credit English Part I) is for students to improve their writing so that they will be able to write competently in other college courses and for the workplace. Competent writers are able to discover and organize language that is appropriate to the subject, the purpose, and the audience. In this course a primary source of material is the students' own experiences.

All writing that is produced by persons, even technical writing, is "personal," and before students can gain competence in writing, they will have to find their authentic voices as writers. Underlying the specific assignments in this course is the belief that finding voice and accepting responsibility for it can best be done by beginning with specifically personal forms of writing.

The writing process is both invention, a way of creating ourselves and the world, and a set of interacting skills which are vital to clear and effective communication. Taking account of both of these approaches, this course will offer instruction and practice in pre-writing (or inventing and gathering material); in drafting (or creating and arranging a first version); and in rewriting (or creating a final form). In all three stages students learn to write by writing—and by gaining feedback from their instructor and their peers. Essay forms may include the personal narrative, descriptions of place and process, comparison and contrast, a researched argument, and others.

Writing is connected to thinking, reading, listening, and speaking. To support development as writers, students should read essays, autobiographies, autobiographical novels, or other supplementary readings. Group work and oral presentations should provide for development of speaking skills.

Student Learning Outcomes:

1. Demonstrate the use of pre-reading, reading, and post-reading skills with college-level texts.
2. Pre-write, draft, revise, edit, and proofread college-level texts.
3. Expand vocabulary by using various methods.
4. Demonstrate comprehension by identifying rhetorical strategies and applying them to college-level texts.
5. Analyze college-level texts for stated or implied main idea and major and minor supporting details.
6. Demonstrate critical thinking skills when reading and writing college-level texts.
7. Write well-developed, coherent, and unified college-level texts, including paragraphs and essays.
8. Identify, evaluate, integrate, and document sources properly.

Specific Objectives:

To develop writing competence in a variety of rhetorical modes.

Students will develop a minimum of 5 essays in a variety of rhetorical modes, each topic coming from the students' personal experiences, interests, and reactions.

Four of the essays should be a minimum of three typed pages. The fifth, a documented essay, should be a minimum of five typed pages, with a minimum of three sources integrated along with the students' own ideas.

Each essay will go through a pre-writing, drafting and rewriting process.

Rhetorical elements such as purpose, audience and organization will be emphasized.

Editing will emphasize improvement in paragraphing, sentence variety, and grammatical and mechanical conventions.

Peer editing and instructors' comments should aid in the improvement process.

To develop information literacy and awareness of the conventions of writing for an academic audience.

Students will practice research skills, locating information from their library's resources and other sources, and integrating them in a final documented essay.

Readings should be incorporated into the course to give students an awareness of the standards of academic writing.

All essays must be typed, following the formatting and conventions of the Modern Language Association.

To develop critical thinking skills.

Reading texts in various genres and online discussion of those texts (as an entire class or in small groups) should aid students' awareness of language, purpose, organization, and audience for writing.

Peer editing should be used to enhance students' critical thinking skills related to the assignment's goals and students' growing awareness of the characteristics of effective writing.

Students must attend a minimum of five cultural events, and must write a two-page critical analysis of each of the five events.

Course Readings: Selections will include works by Geoffrey Chaucer, Christopher Marlowe, Andrew Marvell, Robert Herrick, John Milton, Amelia Lanier, Jonathan Swift, Alexander Pope, Robert Burns, William Blake, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, and William Wordsworth.

Additionally, students will read the following texts in their entirety:

Macbeth and A Midsummer Night's Dream by William Shakespeare

Frankenstein by Mary Shelley

Course Units:

UNIT ONE: The Anglo-Saxon Period / Essay One: Narrative Essay

UNIT TWO: The Medieval Period / Essay Two: Expository Essay

UNIT THREE: The English Renaissance / Essay Three: Descriptive Essay

UNIT FOUR: The English Civil War, Restoration, and Age of Reason / Essay Four: Satirical Essay

UNIT FIVE: The Early Romantic Period / Final Essay: Literary Analysis

Information Literacy: Information literacy is a set of abilities requiring individuals to recognize when information is needed and have the ability to locate, evaluate, and use effectively the needed information. Information literacy also is increasingly important in the contemporary environment of rapid technological change and proliferating information resources. Because of the escalating complexity of this environment, individuals are faced with diverse, abundant information choices--in their academic studies, in the workplace, and in their personal lives. Information is available through libraries, community resources, special interest organizations, media, and the Internet--and increasingly, information comes to individuals in unfiltered formats, raising questions about its authenticity, validity, and reliability. In addition, information is available through multiple media, including graphical, aural, and textual, and these pose new challenges for individuals in evaluating and understanding it. The uncertain quality and expanding quantity of information pose large challenges for society. The sheer abundance of information will not in itself create a more informed citizenry without a complementary cluster of abilities necessary to use information effectively.

Information literacy forms the basis for lifelong learning. It is common to all disciplines, to all learning environments, and to all levels of education. It enables learners to master content and extend their investigations, become more self-directed, and assume greater control over their own learning. An information literate individual is able to:

- Determine the extent of information needed
- Access the needed information effectively and efficiently
- Evaluate information and its sources critically
- Incorporate selected information into one's knowledge base
- Use information effectively to accomplish a specific purpose
- Understand the economic, legal, and social issues surrounding the use of information, and access and use information ethically and legally

Method of Evaluating Student Achievement (Grading Policy and Scale):

Your final course grade will be averaged as follows:

Writing Projects = 50%

Quizzes = 10%

Activities and Forums = 10%

Cultural Events = 10%

Exams (Midterm & Final) = 20%

Each assignment in this course is graded on a ten-point scale:

100-90 % = A

89-80 % = B

79-70 % = C

69-60 % = D

59 % or less = F

Grades will be reported to your community college in the form of a letter, not a percentage, using the scale above.

Grades will be reported to your high school with a numeric grade; assignment of a final letter grade for high school credit will be at determined at the discretion of the school.

Grading Criteria for College Writing: "A" writing is excellent, exceptional. It has the same qualities as "B" writing, but with some special concentration or intensity. It is more efficient, tighter in its logic, packed with meaning, and aware of the magic of language.

"B" means good. "B" writing is clear, and it has enough supporting details and examples to satisfy a reader's curiosity, and to develop the main idea. It seems to come from the writer's true thoughts and feelings, though sincerity is hard to judge. Finally, it seems to be worked out, to move from beginning to end without blips and glitches.

"C" is average. It is not an insult. The average writer in a beginning composition course can write coherent sentences, which is an important achievement. A frequent mark of the "C" is lack of development, not going far enough or deep enough, not providing reasons or details or examples or whatever the topic needs. Frequently, the writer of the "C" paper says, after receiving the grade, "If I'd put more into it, I could've done better." Frequently, that's true. A "C" paper often has minor problems that are distracting. A word is repeated seven times in one paragraph, or a paragraph may include sentences that don't work well together, or there may be an occasional verb problem.

Most "D" papers seem careless, though sometimes they seem that way only because the writer is following rules which are different from the rules of standard English. "I seen him" and "He don't know" are examples. Often "D" papers are not divided into paragraphs. The appetizer, the salad, the meat, and the pie are all on the plate at the same time. Many "D" papers are extremely short, and sometimes they seem to be based on an incomplete understanding of the assignment.

"F" papers in no way meet the standards of college writing.

Attendance Policy: Because this is an Internet based course, there is not a scheduled time set for your coursework. Regular class attendance is required. When absence from a class is necessary, it is the responsibility of the student to inform the instructor prior to the absence. The student is responsible for the subsequent completion of all work missed during an absence. The Virginia Community College System is committed to academic quality and student success. Elements that support both values are regular attendance and participation in class. The college policy states that regular class attendance is required.

At least once every school day, you are required to log into Canvas and perform three tasks:

1. Check your inbox for new messages.
2. Check for new course announcements.
3. Check the calendar under to see what work is due.

You should then proceed to work on the assignments within the current unit.

Late Work Policy: It is your responsibility to be logged every school day. Students are expected to work on course assignments for a minimum of 60 minutes per school day. If you are absent or unable to log on, please send a message explaining your absence as soon as possible. If you do not log on for more than three school days in a row, your guidance counselor will be contacted.

This is a college course, and you are expected to plan ahead for due dates and give yourself plenty of time to complete all work. DO NOT wait until the last minute. For example, if a writing assignment is open for an entire week, but you wait until ten minutes before the assignment closes and experience a technical problem, you will not be given an extension because ample time was provided for you to submit your work. Plan accordingly if you will be out of school on trips. All work must be completed before leaving for a school trip to prevent them from being late. Due dates are located on the calendar and throughout the course.

If you do not turn in an assignment on the deadline, you will be allowed to submit it with point deductions for one week (exceptions may apply). For example: If assignment is due on August 10, you will have until August 17 to submit it for partial credit. There will be an automatic 25-point deduction for all late submissions.

- Sue doesn't turn in her work by the August 10 deadline. On August 11, the instructor posted the following into Sue grade book:
 - Example comment in gradebook: (8-11) This assignment was due on August 10 but not submitted. You may submit the work until August 17 with a 25-point deduction. If there are extenuating circumstances that have prevented you from submitted this assignment, please contact me as soon as possible. The zero will be removed after the assignment if submitted.
- Sue turns in her work three days late. After grading the assignment, her instructor believes it is quality work. He assigns her a 90 BUT he then deducts 25 points because the assignment was late. Sue will see a 65 in the grade book. Students will be made aware of the last day to submit the assignment within the grade book.
- If Sue doesn't turn in her assignment by the final deadline, she will see an additional statement in her grade book. (8-18) This assignment is now closed. It was not submitted by the final deadline. You may longer submit this assignment for a grade.

Exceptions to the late work policy will only be allowed IF a documented excuse is provided by your school's guidance counselor or administrative staff (illness, family emergency, etc.). Email the teacher if problems occur so they can be handled on a one-on-one basis. Please be aware that SVETN's schedule requires that we adhere to deadlines, even when schools are closed. If you have internet access at home, continue to log in and participate in class even if your school is closed. If you do not have home internet access, it is your responsibility to inform the instructor at the beginning of the semester.

Elite Learning Inclement Weather or School Closure Policy: Asynchronous online courses have many advantages over the traditional classroom. Among those advantages are the availability of the instructor, the opportunity to "attend" class from many locations, the flexibility of schedule, and no make-up days due to snow. To provide the required amount of "seat-time" for students, Elite Learning instructors will continue to present class material and require assignment submissions. When some schools are temporarily closed, it is necessary to require a continuation of assigned work even if students are absent from school due to weather or school closures. It is the responsibility of the student to access the class via Internet during this type of absence. Students without Internet access beyond school hours will need to discuss this with their instructor at the beginning of the semester.

This policy will also be in place due to Covid-19 school closures or any other unexpected closures.

How to be Successful in this Course:

1. Read all assignments and informational documents carefully.
2. Ask questions; I am more than happy to help at any time.
3. Plan ahead, using a calendar. Do not put off long term assignments until the last minute.
4. Turn in all work by the deadlines. Late work will not be accepted without a documented excuse.
5. Plan for technical problems. If an assignment is due on Monday by midnight, do not wait until 11:57 p.m. to try to submit the work and risk dealing with a technical issue.

Logging In: At least once every school day, you should log on to Canvas and perform three tasks:

1. Check your inbox for new messages.
2. Check for new course announcements.
3. Check the course calendar to see what work is due soon.

You should then proceed to work on the assignments within the current unit. At the beginning of the course, only Unit One will be accessible. New units will become available as the course progresses.

Submitting Work: Many of the assignments in this course, such as quizzes and forum posts, will be completed in Canvas. Long-form writing projects, however, should be submitted as files saved using Microsoft Word or an equivalent word processing software format (such as Google Docs).

All work should be written in Times New Roman 12-point font, double-spaced, and have one-inch margins. Please put your name, my name, the class name, and the date of submission in the upper left-hand corner of the first page of each assignment.

For example:

When you click on a writing assignment in Canvas, you will see an upload bar, with a browse button to search for your file. First click on “browse,” then find your file on your computer, and then click on “upload this file.”

Avoiding Plagiarism: Plagiarism is using word-for-word, or in substance, someone else’s words or ideas without giving the original author proper credit. Typical acts of plagiarism include:

1. Copying someone else’s homework.
2. Turning in work previously submitted by another student or to another teacher.
3. Copying a classmate’s quiz or test answers.
4. Copying out of a book or from a webpage without introducing the source and putting direct quotes into quotation marks.

Plagiarism is a very serious offense. It is not only cheating, but it is also a form of theft that is just as punishable in the real world as it is in school. Fortunately, plagiarism is relatively easy to avoid, with a bit of diligence. In order to avoid plagiarism, you should,

A. Never use someone else's words without putting them into quotation marks, and attributing the quotation to a source, like this:

According to Shakespeare in As You Like It, "all the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players" (II.vii.139-140).

B. Always acknowledge the source of an idea, even if you put the idea into your own words, like this:

Shakespeare argued in As You Like It that we are all just actors in a great, big, universal play (II.vii.139-140).

Refer to an online MLA citation resource (such as Purdue's Online Writing Lab, <http://owl.english.purdue.edu>, or Citation Machine at <http://citationmachine.net>) for more information if you choose to quote from a source. More detailed instruction will be provided when we begin working on papers that require the incorporation of research.

Students committing any act of plagiarism will receive a grade of zero for that assignment.

Additional sanctions may be imposed if the Honor Code violation is severe. Violations may be reported to the community college, as all violations are also a violation of the Honor Code of your local community college.

Academic Integrity: Each student will be bound by the academic codes of their school. Any violations will be reported to the student's school for appropriate disciplinary action. Cheating will not be tolerated. Because these courses are considered college courses, each student is considered a responsible adult, and will face the consequences of their chosen actions. It is assumed that students will maintain standards of conduct appropriate to membership in Elite Learning as well as the community college. Emphasis is placed on standards of student conduct rather than on limits or restrictions. Guidelines and regulations governing student conduct are developed by the Elite Learning faculty, staff, and administration. More detailed information is found in the Elite Learning Student Guide.

Saving Your Work: Please backup all work and save it until after you have received your final course grade, in case of hardware or software failure.

Students with Disabilities: Students who participate in this class are also high school students. Each high school has resources available for students with disabilities (IEP). Please contact the guidance counselor at your school to request academic accommodations. Each community college also has the Office of Student Services, which may be able to provide additional services. A representative from your school (guidance counselor) may make a request for services at the college. That office will evaluate the request and make recommendations for appropriate and reasonable accommodations, which the student will provide to the instructor. Please contact your guidance counselor or SVETN for more information.

VHCC Only: The policy of VHCC will be followed. You may find this information on the college website. You are encouraged to discuss any special problems, needs or accommodations with the instructor during the first week of class. If you have a disability or other need for reasonable accommodation in order to successfully complete the requirements of this course, please contact ACA Coordinator to discuss this matter confidentially.

Emergency Policy: Follow all emergency policies for your home school. In the event of a collegewide emergency, course requirements, classes, deadlines, and grading schemes are subject to changes that may include alternative delivery methods, alternative methods of interaction with the instructor, class materials, and/or classmates, a revised attendance policy, and a revised semester calendar and/or grading scheme.

It is critical that all students read the Elite Learning Guide for Students. This guide is located at www.svetn.org as well as within your course. Contact Dawn Stafford, SVETN Executive Director, if you have questions or concerns.

NOTE: This is a hybrid document, created through collaboration between the instructor, SVETN, and the various accrediting community colleges. If you have any questions about course or college policies, please do not hesitate to contact Mr. Burns, SVETN, or your college.

Course syllabus and schedule is subject to change at the discretion of the instructor.
